

004270-422550

1. The first group of people who are interested in the results of the study are the researchers themselves. They want to know if the study was successful in achieving its objectives and if the results are consistent with their expectations. They also want to know if the study was conducted in a rigorous and unbiased manner.

2. The second group of people who are interested in the results of the study are the participants. They want to know if the study was fair and if their participation was meaningful. They also want to know if the results of the study will be used to improve the quality of the service they are receiving.

3. The third group of people who are interested in the results of the study are the stakeholders. They want to know if the study was conducted in a transparent and accountable manner. They also want to know if the results of the study will be used to inform their decision-making.

4. The fourth group of people who are interested in the results of the study are the general public. They want to know if the study was conducted in a responsible and ethical manner. They also want to know if the results of the study will be used to improve the quality of life for everyone.

5. The fifth group of people who are interested in the results of the study are the funders. They want to know if the study was conducted in a cost-effective manner. They also want to know if the results of the study will be used to justify the investment of their money.

6. The sixth group of people who are interested in the results of the study are the policymakers. They want to know if the study was conducted in a timely and relevant manner. They also want to know if the results of the study will be used to inform their policy-making.

7. The seventh group of people who are interested in the results of the study are the practitioners. They want to know if the study was conducted in a practical and applicable manner. They also want to know if the results of the study will be used to improve their practice.

8. The eighth group of people who are interested in the results of the study are the community. They want to know if the study was conducted in a respectful and inclusive manner. They also want to know if the results of the study will be used to improve the quality of life for everyone in the community.

9. The ninth group of people who are interested in the results of the study are the media. They want to know if the study was conducted in a newsworthy and interesting manner. They also want to know if the results of the study will be used to inform the public.

10. The tenth group of people who are interested in the results of the study are the future researchers. They want to know if the study was conducted in a replicable and generalizable manner. They also want to know if the results of the study will be used to inform their own research.

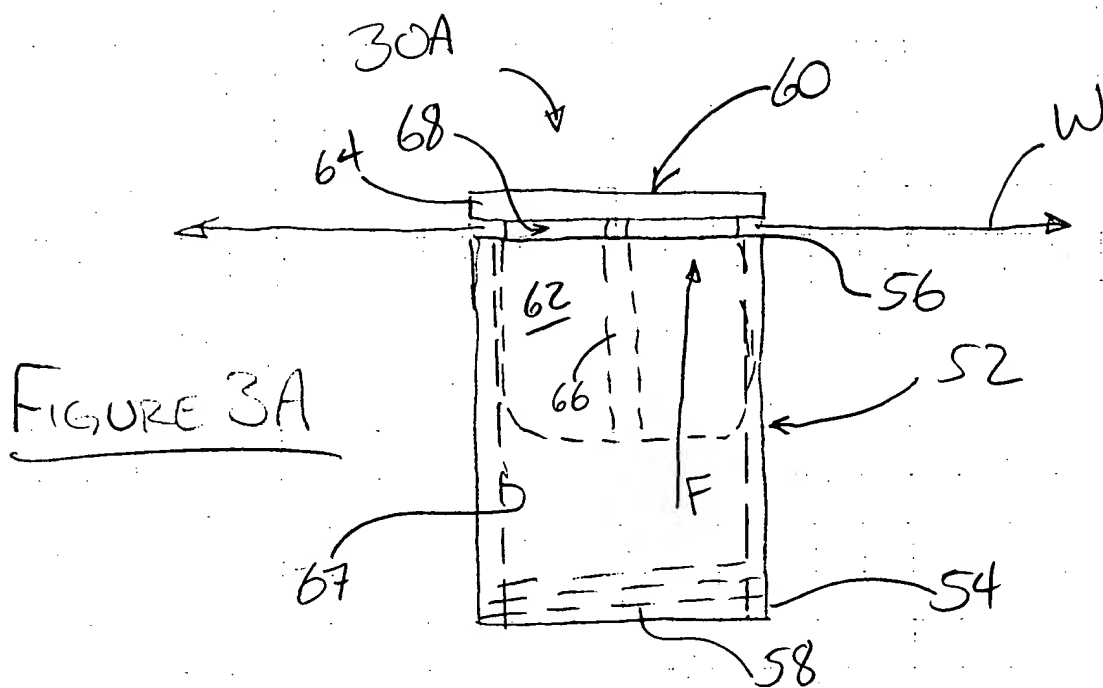

FIGURE 3B

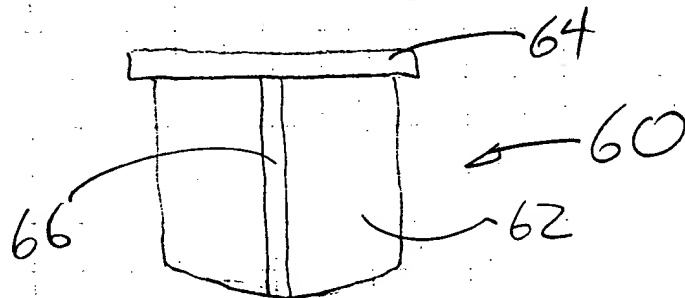

FIGURE 3C

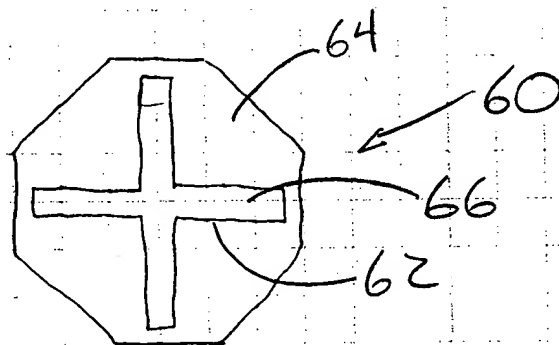

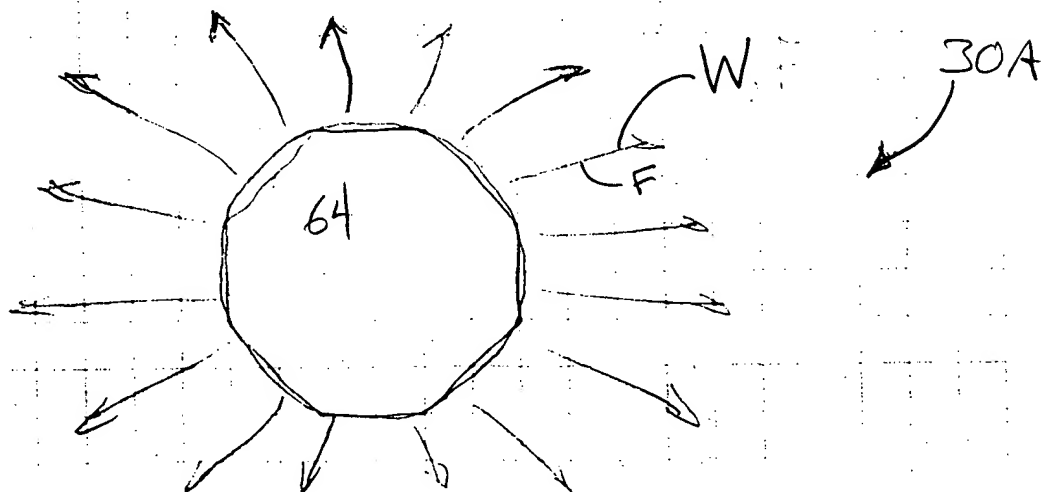

FIGURE 3D

007240-1225560

FIGURE 4A

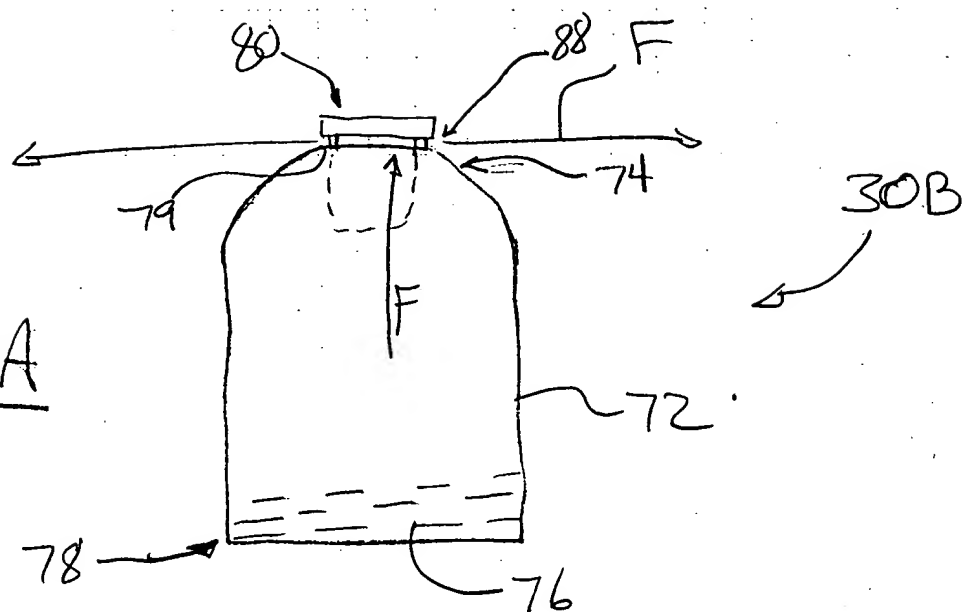

FIGURE 4B

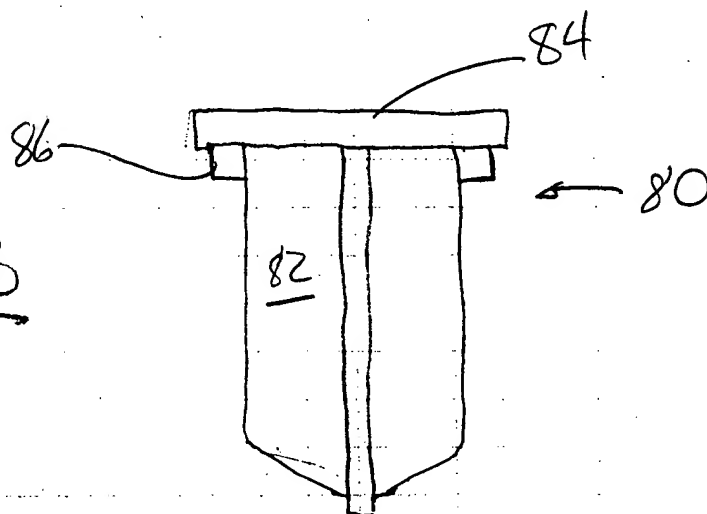

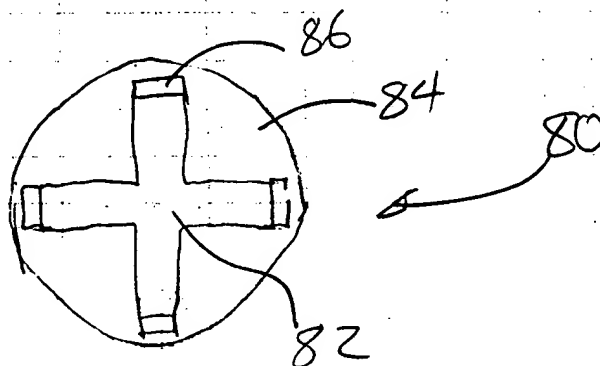

FIGURE 4C

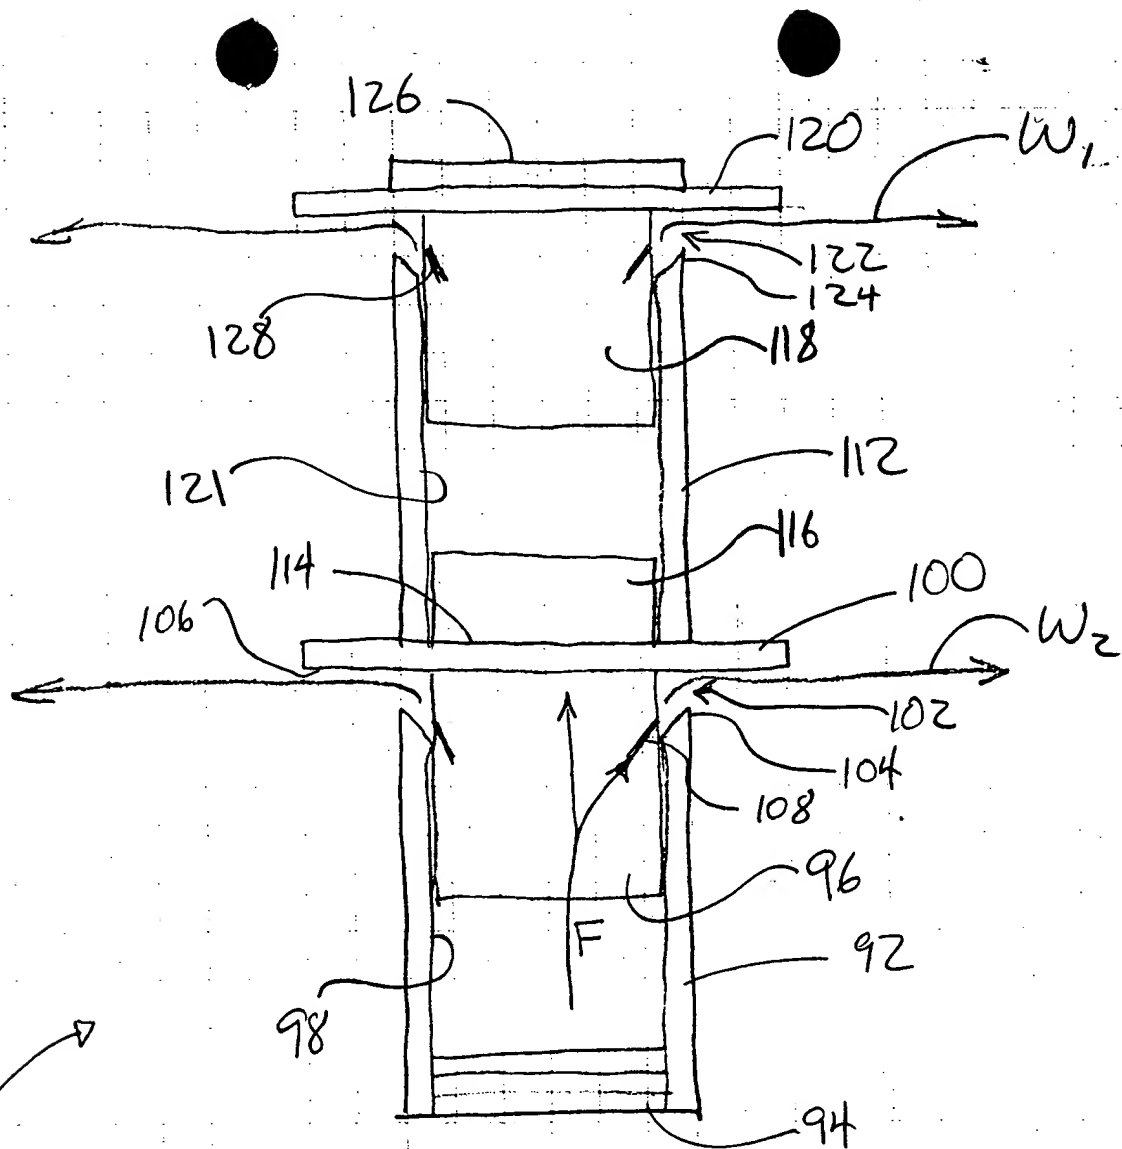

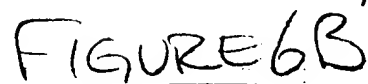

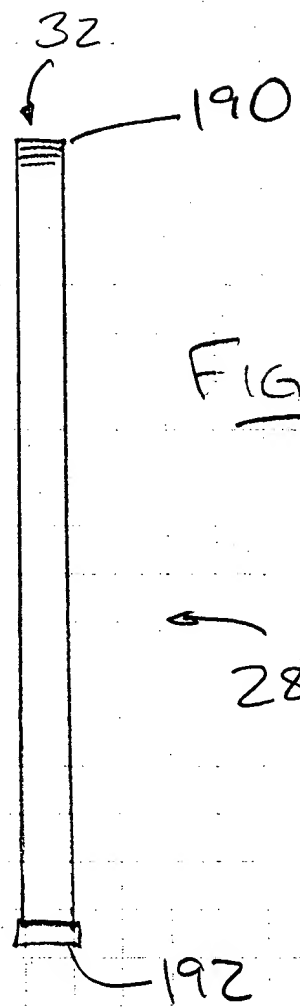

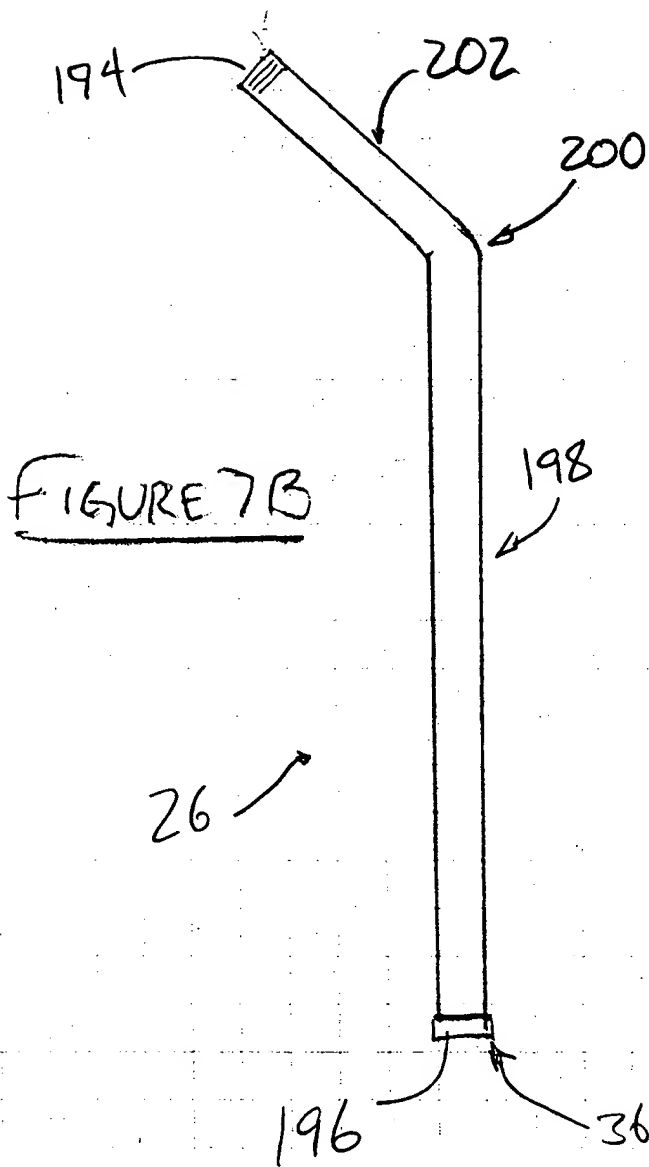

FIGURE 5

30D

004240.042560

[illegible]

FIGURE 8A

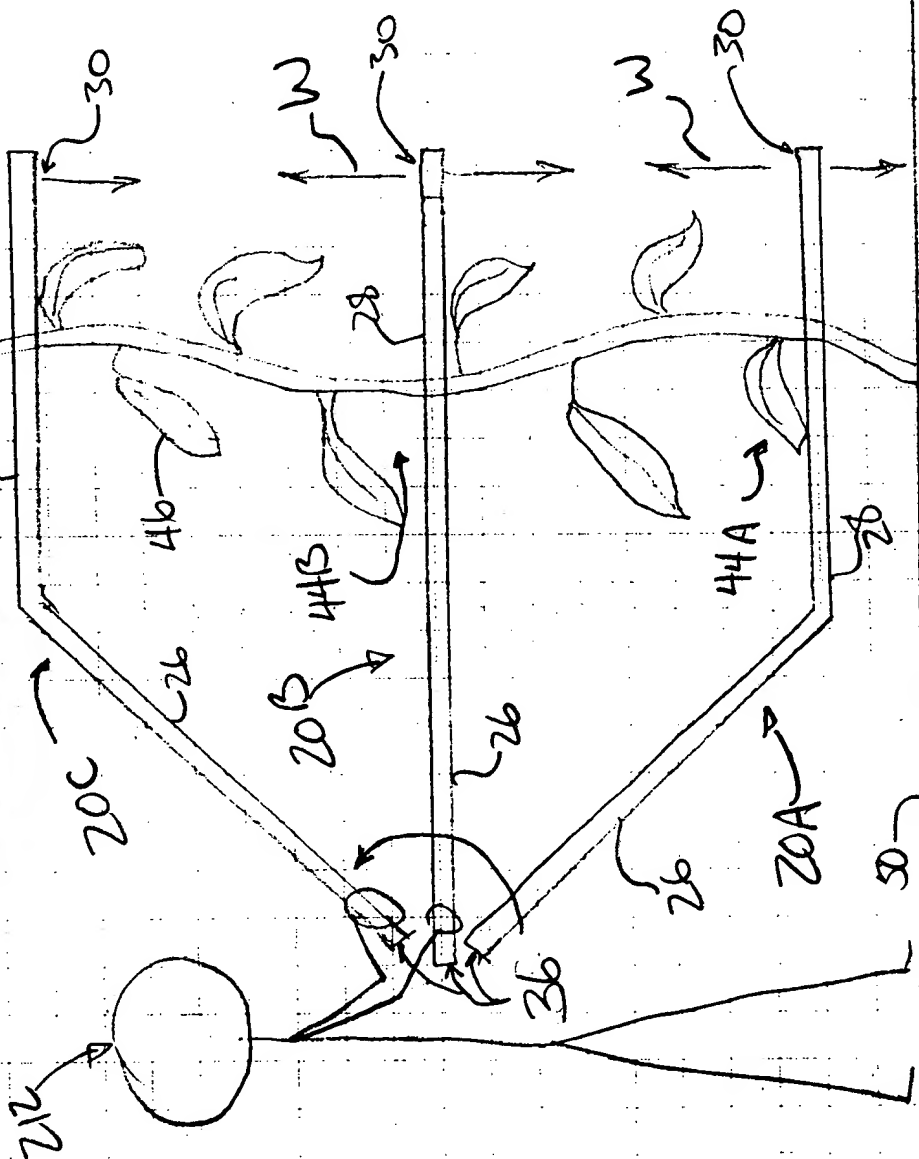

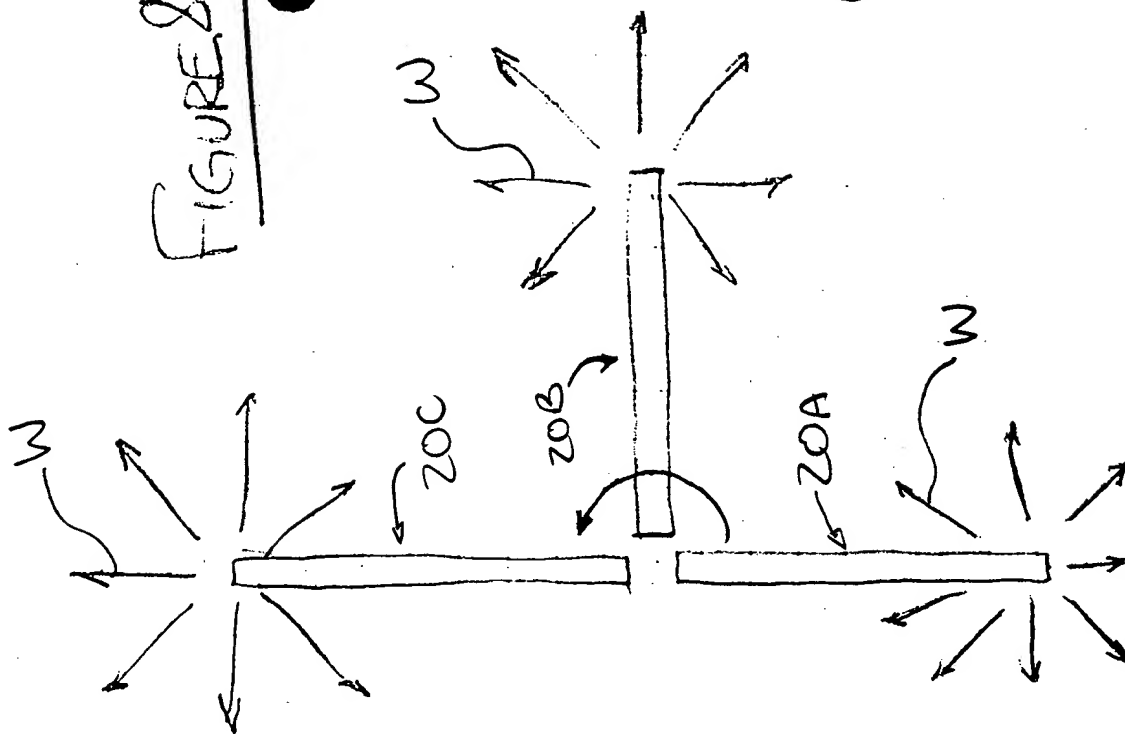

FIGURE 2B

004240-7225560 0957234-042400

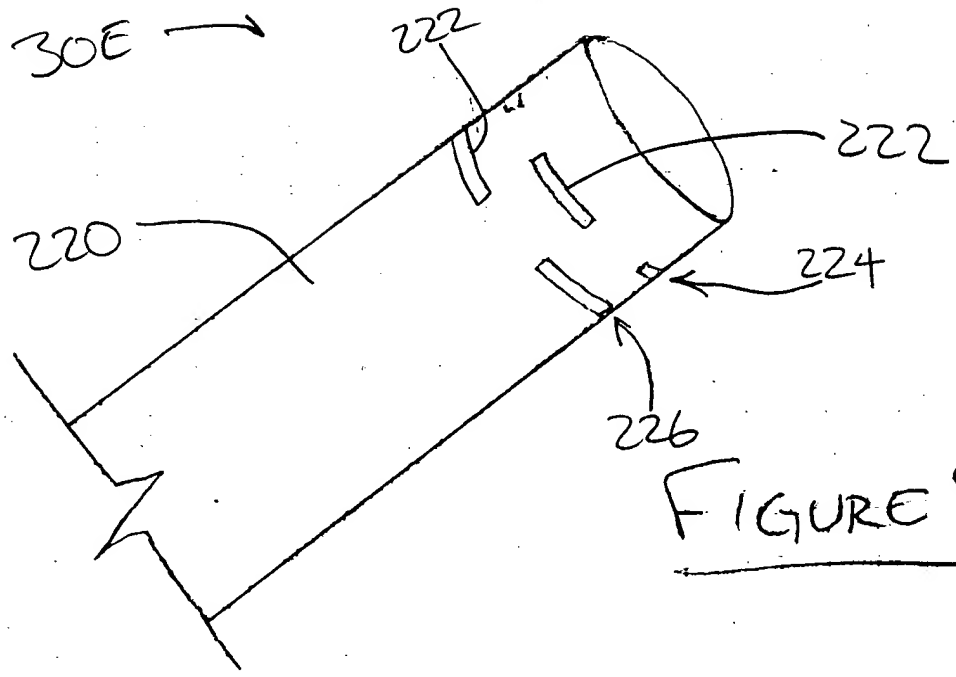

FIGURE 9A

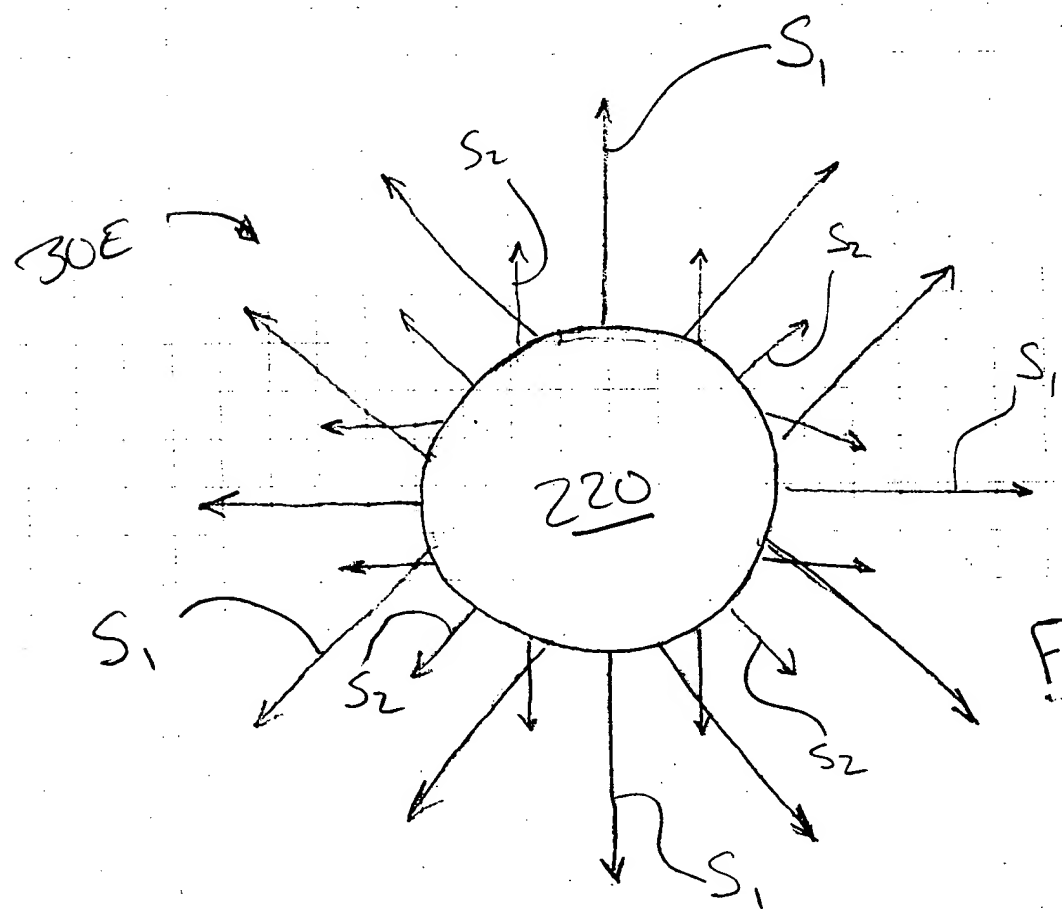

FIGURE 9